

ART OF BRINGING UP CHILDREN

RESPONSIBILITY OF ELDERS

C. Kesavulu, B.Sc., B.Ed.,
Retd. Headmaster, Chittoor.

OPINION

Sri Kekalathr Krishnaiah is a writer of many books with variation of subjects. In my view, in his life itself he played different roals. He was a public servant, an athlete, a private employee, a doctor, a farmer, a surveyor, an Engineer, a contractor and now a wirter. what he would be....?

Now in this book “ART OF BRINGING UP CHILD - RESPONSIBILITIES OF ELDERS” with social responsibility he wants to give a message to the society.

People know how to give birth to a child-but howmany of them knew how to brought them up in a right way? Even among the known people how-many at them are putting into practice? Because of not putting into practice howmuch damage is causing directly to the parents and indirectly to the society? Who is responsible for the illegal activities and un-social activities in the society?

Teaching community has more responsibility than parents in shaping the children in a right way. One of the famous Educationist Dr. Kottari said that “ANations desting is shaped in the class-room”.

To some extent we can understand that poor parents may not give balanced diet to their children and hence their children may be facing ill-health problems. But what about the children of rich parents. Some of their children are also facing physical and mental problems-why? Can't they feed balanced diet to their children? Or they don't know about balanced diet? suppose inspite of knowing are they neglecting their children? If so why?

To answer all these questions, in my view, Sri. K. Krishnaiah feeling social responsibility brought this book to serve the society at his level.

If all parents read this book, understand the content and follow sincerely, they can see wonderful results in their children. They can see not only rank children but also cultured, disciplined, duty minded, responsible, obedient and brave children with moral values and scholarly qualities. Teacher community may also feel happy.

Whole-heartedly I congratulate Sri K. Krishnaiah for having brought such a nice and useful book presented to the society. Wishing and expecting many more such kind of books from his pen. . .

B. Sarada, B.Sc., B.Ed.,
Retd. Head mistress

OPINION

Sri Kekaltur Krishnaiah even after 69 years of age without taking rest he became a writer of many books with his own style. In his writings explained facts with his own experience.

The present book “ART OF BRINGING UP CHILD - RESPONSIBILITIES OF ELDERS” is very easy to follow. Childrens mind is like wax. It is this wish that parents, teachers, and elders has to mould their minds in right way to meet the present world trend. The zeal in him made to collect so much matter with his ability and presented to the reader like joke fruit seeds. The proverb is a “Strong mind in a strong body”. Hence Sri K. Krishnaiah insisted on balanced diet, family circumstances, school atmosphere and environmental conditions should be good for the improvement of children physically and mentally.

He explained the relationship between the mother (first teacher)-child, featal reactions to sound when it is in mother’s womb; food habits according to age and weight - with examples and data collection. He said that a child can develop charector and moral values through stories from the mother. In his view childhood is more important than rest of the life.

I request and suggest that every parent has to go through the book and there by mould their children in a right way